Web Design and Development

John Rojas
Art 341 - Interactive Design
John redesigned the website for a local Ramen restaurant called Akasu. He used SVGs and CSS aimations to bring the site to life.

Melanie Von Trapp
Art 341 - Interactive Design
Melanie was very passionate abot this online voter's guide. She was new to HTML and CSS but quickly picked up JQuery and some vanilla Javascript because she was so excited about her vision for the project.

Brandon Pahnish
Art 341 - Interactive Design
2nd Ave Records is Brandon's favoitre Portland record store and he wants to make it better. He chose this business for his project because he spenda so much time there but feels their (lack of) online presence is hurting their business.

Margo Smolynskia
Art 341 - Interactive Design
Margo's first project was a fan website for the TV show the Twilight Zone. For episode selection she used a playful treasure map style line. She loved her project so much she decided to add animations and interactions to it later in the term.

Donna Lambert
Thinkful Flex Web Development Bootcamp
A child of the 70's, Donna chose to make a JQuery interactive quiz app about old school video games. She went to town on styling, using lots of great css animations to create glowing CTR style graphics.

Peeter Meorts
Thinkful Flex Web Development Bootcamp
Peeter is a full time web developer working with Shopify and front-end HTML. He's taking Bootcamp to become a full stack developoer.

Guljan Khudabai
Thinkful Flex Web Development Bootcamp
For Guljan's API Capstone project she chose a recipe API called The Meal DB. Her project finds recipes, displays their instructions, and links users to an instructional YouTube video.

Francis Clairville
Thinkful Flex Web Development Bootcamp
Francis loves the Wu-Tang Clan. He struggled with the design of his project but in the end turned in something beautiful and fun.
